What is the difference between Septic & Conservancy Tanks?

Septic Tank

A septic tank is used for the disposal of sewerage only. It brings about the digestion of organic matter and discharges the black water into a French drain to soak away into the ground over time. It requires minimum maintenance, as each component has a specific function and is designed accordingly.

Conservancy Tank

As it is chemical-resistant, a conservancy tank is used for the disposal of both black and grey water. It serves as temporary storage only, requiring the waste to be pumped out whenever the tank is full. This is done by licensed hauling companies who dispose of the waste accordingly.

Note: JoJo manufactures its septic and conservancy tanks from recycled plastic in order to reduce destructive waste output. They are therefore not suitable for the storage of water for potable purposes.
